6. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow :

When we came down from the summit, there was much foolish talk about who got there first. Some said it was I (Tenzing), some Hillary. Some say that only one of us got there or neither. Still others, that one of us had to drag the other up. To put a stop to such talk Hillary and I signed a statement in which we said, "We reached the summit almost together." Mountaineers understand that when two men are on the same rope they are together. But other people did not understand and kept on asking questions. This has caused so much talk and doubt and misunderstanding that I feel, the answer should be given. It is not for my own sake that I give it. Nor it is for Hillary's. It is for the prestige of Everest — and for the generations who will come after us. "Why," they will say, "should there be a mystery to this thing ? Why can we not know the truth ?" "Very well; now they will know the truth. Everest is too great for anything but the truth.

A little below the summit Hillary and I stopped. We looked up. Then we went on. The rope that joined us was thirty feet long, but I held most of it in loops in my hand so that there was only six feet between us. I was not thinking of 'first' and 'second'. We went on slowly, steadily. And then we were there, Hillary stepped on first. And I stepped up after him.

(a) What was the talk when the climbers came down ? 2

(b) What did they do to stop it ? 2

The man who is always hesitating which of the two things he will do first, will do neither. The man who resolves, but allows his resolution to be changed by the counter suggestion of a friend — Who changes from opinion to opinion, from plan to plan and turns like a weathercock to every point of compass with every breadth — can never accomplish anything great or useful. It is the man who first consults wisely, then resolves firmly, and then executes the purpose with perseverance in the face of whatever difficulties may come in the way, — that can advance to any line. Take your course wisely, but firmly; and having taken it, hold on to it with resolution, and the Alps and the Himalayas will sink before you.
